The 1980 Indian
Arkansas State University
Volume 57

Unlike the Arkansas State College of yesteryear, Arkansas State University of 1980 moves toward the future . . .

But remembers its past . . .

Finding those moments of happiness, sadness and togetherness come easy to some and difficult to others.
However, as we think back, it was all worthwhile . . .

Bulky sweaters and long skirts have given way to halter tops.

"Give 'em hell Red" — Go State Go — the fans thundered from the stands as the crowd cheered on the tribe of then and now . . .

We've come a long way: From a drive-in football field to a first-class stadium complete with regional TV coverage and "The Message Center", a new electronic scoreboard.

Uniforms are sleek, colorful and skintight, compared to tank tops, knee socks, and shorts of ASU's first basketball team.

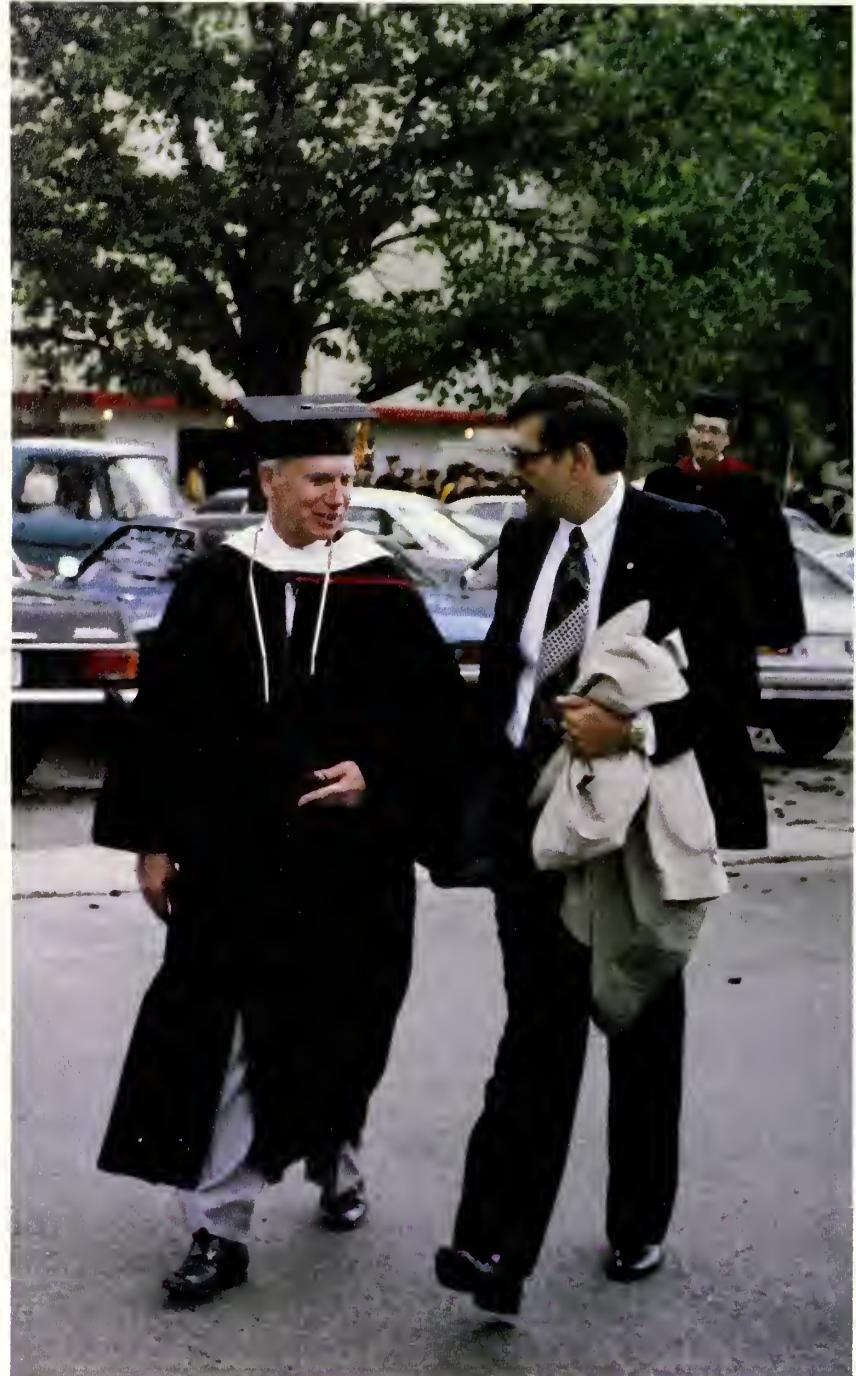

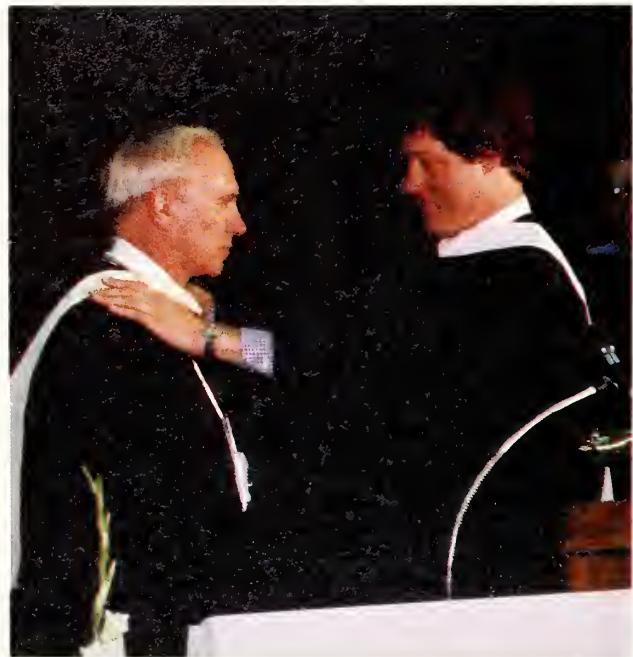

Where are the Homecoming
Queens of the past?

Homecoming is a special time of every year . . .

President Carl Whillock became Arkansas State's 6th president and the first to have an investiture . . .

As the school has grown so have the interests . . .

ASU is a sign of the times . . .

Even though the faces change from year to year, some things
always stay the same . . .

Student Life

Movin' In

Packing every pair of shoes that were ever bought, stuffing the luggage beyond capacity with the clean and dirty laundry, rustling as many towels as possible and creating every kind of expense that'll need cash, played a major part of the mass exodus from home to "movin' in" the dorm.

This year's annual migration to ASU was no different from previous years. The "dog day afternoons" of August came to life as car loads of students returned to their home away from home, and as usual brought more than they needed or had room for. Freshmen experienced a whole new ball game.

Of the 7,243 enrolled at ASU, there were 3,887 women and 3,356 men. In Twin Towers, the largest men's dorm, there were 745 housed. Kays Hall housed approximately 600 young women. Danner: 130; Arkansas: 385; University: 326, Indian: 90; Delta: 125 and each had their own individual problems. Parking was the main problem at most of the residence halls and all around campus.

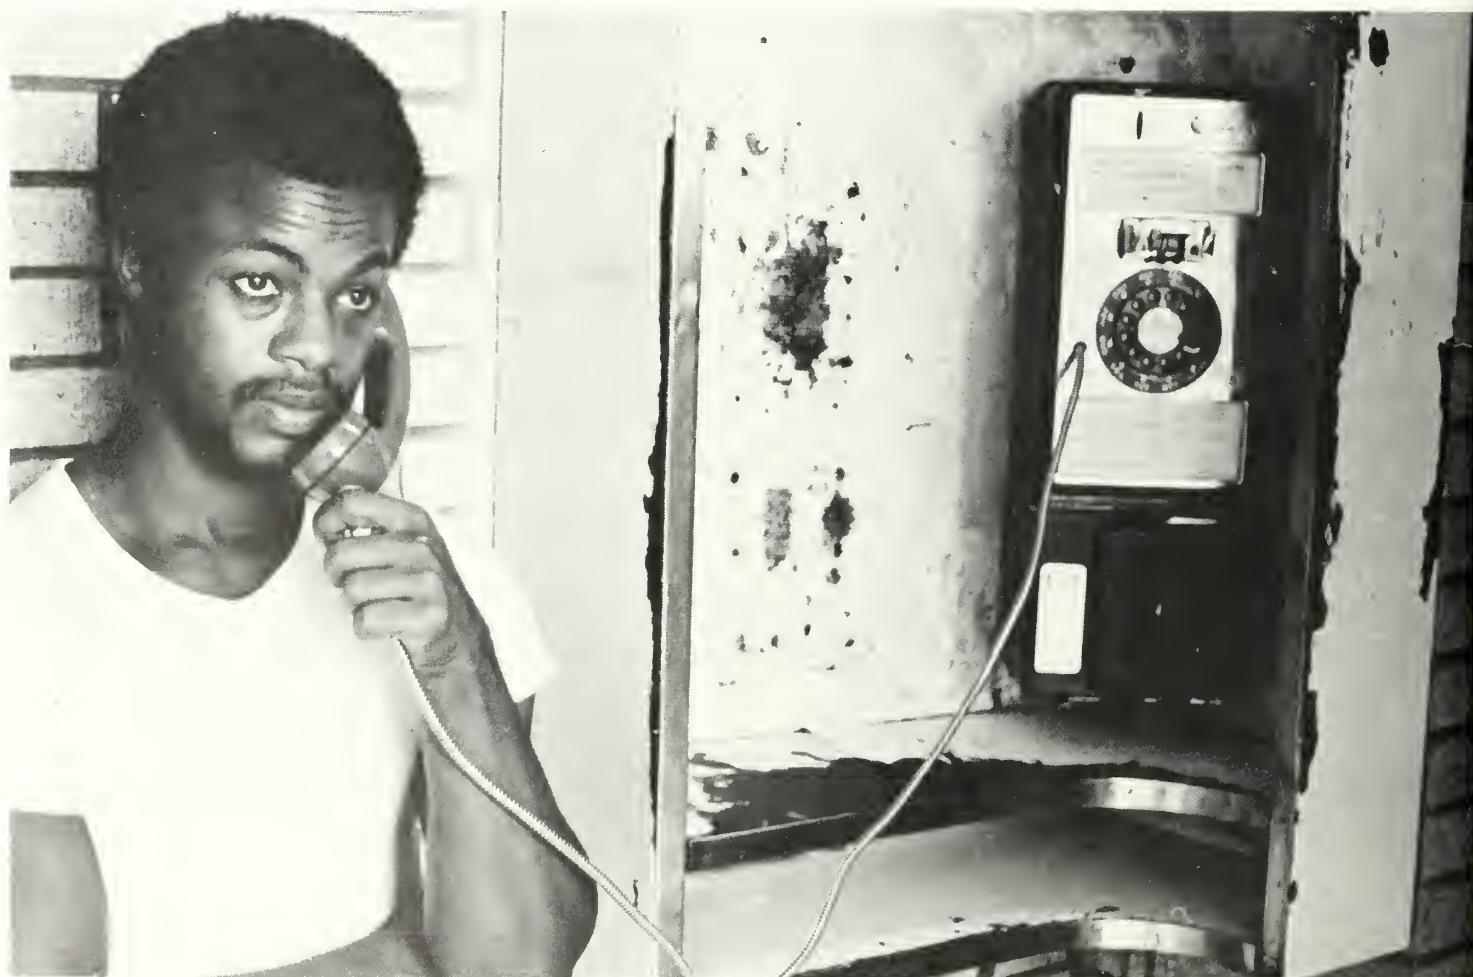

Off The Wall

Trying to beat the everyday ho-hum of classes came very hard for some A-State students. Campus life during the week was filled with organizational meetings, special events, studying and relaxing.

The phone was a luxury and in various cases a "matter of life and death". This was most evident when students missed class notes, needed answers to quizzes or to find out what their best friend was wearing for the next day. However many used the phone to call home, saying they were out of cash and needed a miracle.

"When I use the phone, it's mainly to either call some young lady or to stay in touch with my home folks. I can say I do use the phone quite a few times a day," said Earl Reed of Marion, a junior. One student said the highest phone bill she'd ever had was only thirty-three cents and that was for an entire month.

Meetings accented the week for many students, who often missed meetings; due to the fact they had to attend others.

The Paper Chase

During preregistration and registration, many students became more aware of the art of pursuit. After orientation and visitation with temporary college advisors, students began the headache and hassle of the paper chase.

In the mass confusion of registration, throughout the ballroom of the Reng Center echoed the question, "Where do I go next?" Most students had to pick up at least four to six class cards, which registered a student in a course. Not including cards for parking stickers or telephones. Courses ranged from Agriculture to Zoology.

Many students, especially freshmen, voiced differing opinions on registration.

"It was rough," said freshman Kay Eckles. "I was confused and mad. It took me almost the entire day to get all my class cards together and approved."

This was the general attitude of most freshmen; however, returning students advised new students to "bear with it".

Along with the rest of the "hoopla" of registration came the flash of the photographer's camera, as he took pictures for the new computerized identification cards that were put into use this year.

With enrollment holding its own, there were 2,799 freshmen, 1,243 sophomores, 1,084 juniors, and 1,098 seniors.

According to the Registrar's office 7,250 students were officially enrolled at Arkansas State University.

Many individuals have cited how difficult it is to pre-register and believe that there is a better way. Some possible solutions are sending tentative schedules in by mail, skipping the advisory aspect and using computers to keep track of classes.

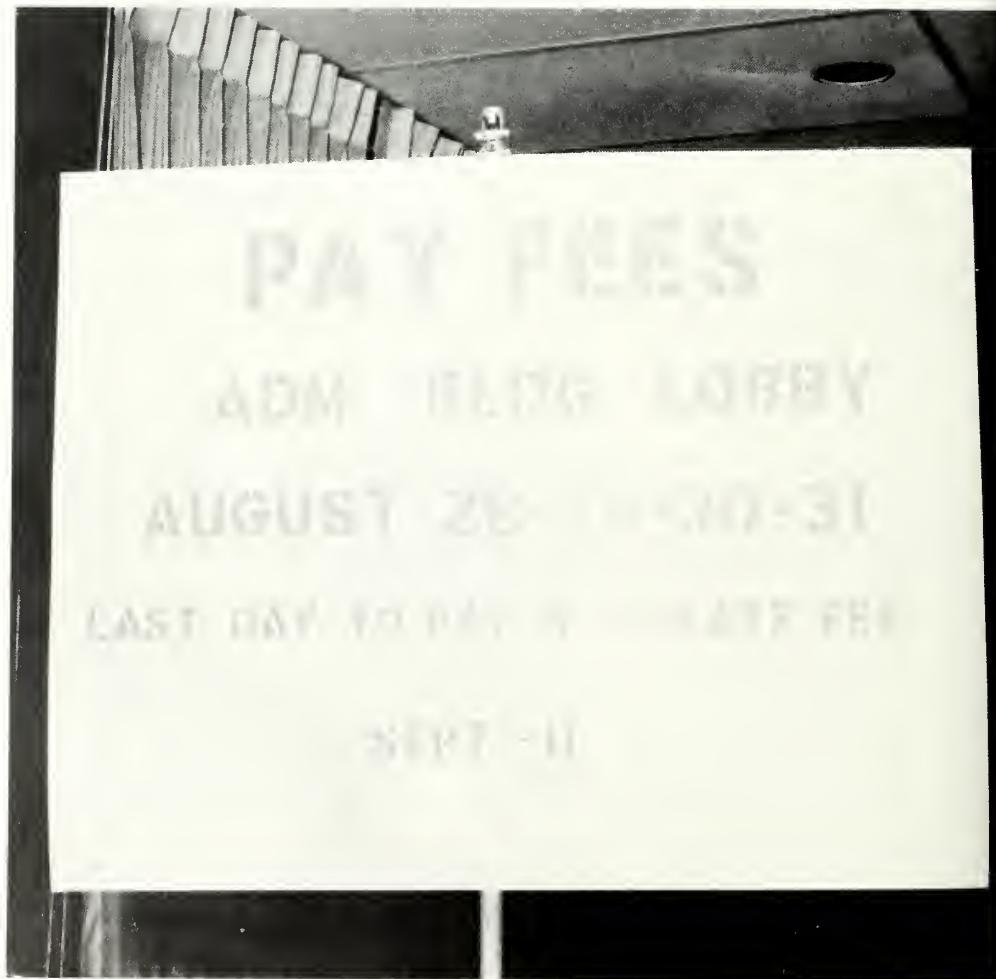

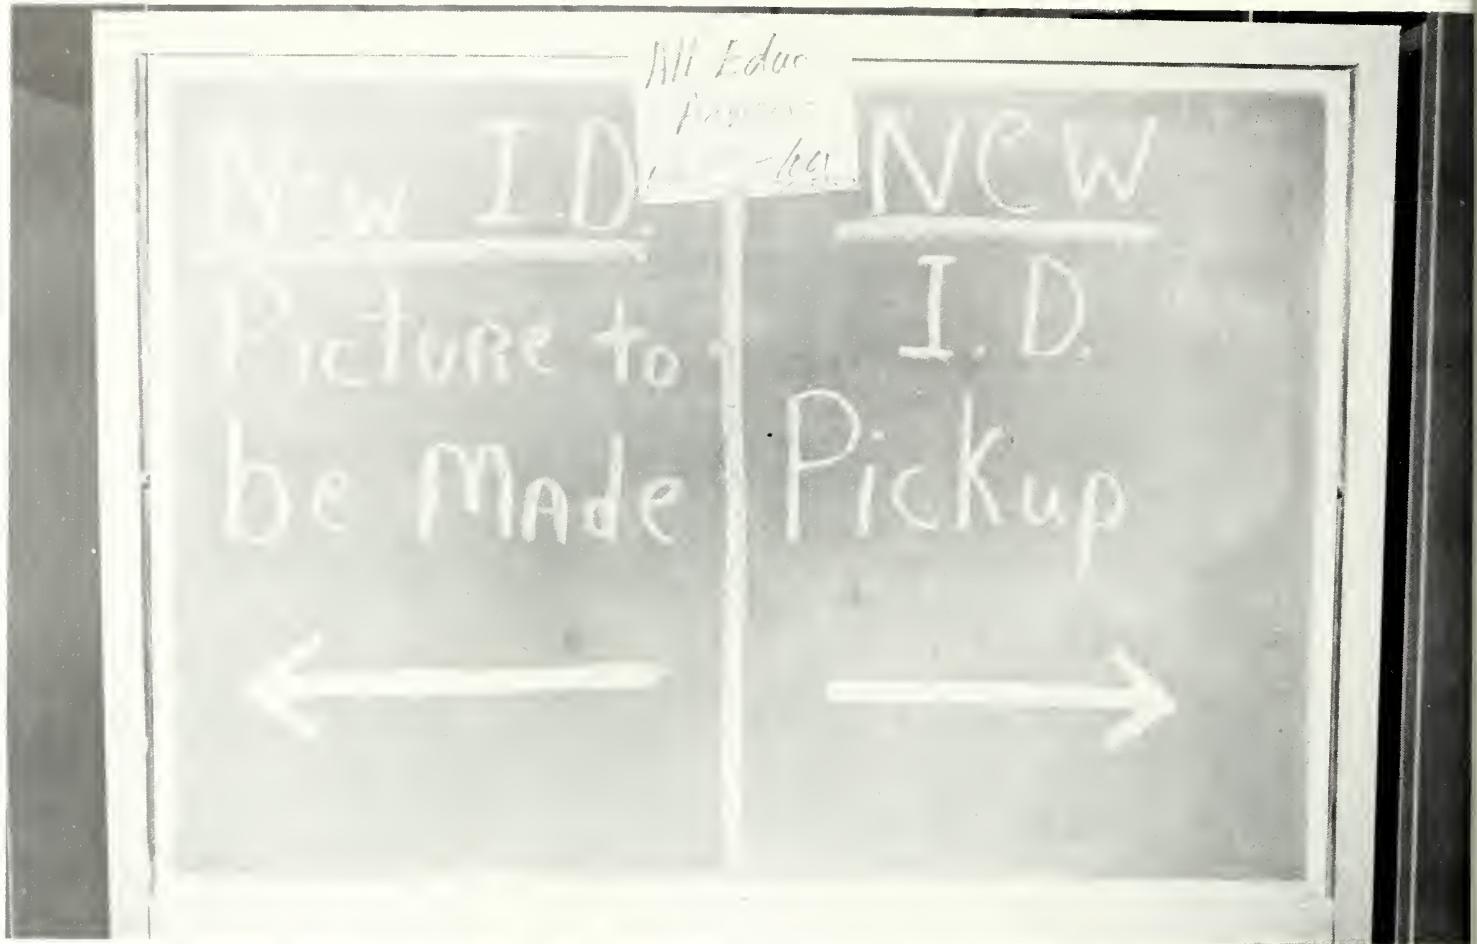

Another possible way is having a day set aside for students in their respective colleges to register. Each year that registration is held in the Armory, it is usually a mess. People pulling cards for others and people coming to pull at the wrong times. The pushing and shoving usually ends up with most students completely frustrated and upset.

Teachers also realize the problem and believe there is a better way, one way or another. With ASU's population growing from year to year, registration will probably become even more difficult.

Postal System Has Grown

Indians of the Pony Express days could have cared less for the value of mail service; however, the Indians of A-State value the postal system a great deal. Even though "smoke signals" have gone up to fifteen cents.

What is now the State University postal system was established during the mid 20's to give campus students an advantage in sending and receiving mail.

There now are approximately 2,300 post office boxes and drawers. Each year every post office box is sold and each drawer is issued to the different colleges and divisions. According to postal officials approximately 500 to 1500 pieces of mail are transacted through the post office daily. Employees work diligently to put mail as quickly as possible into the boxes.

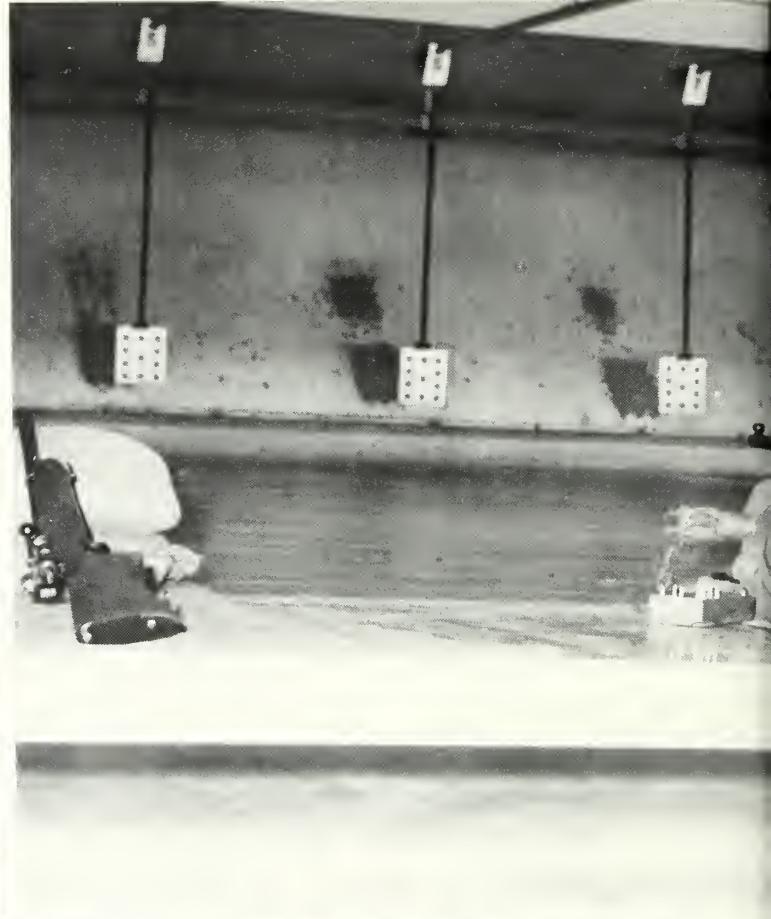

A-State Classrooms More Than Books, Desk

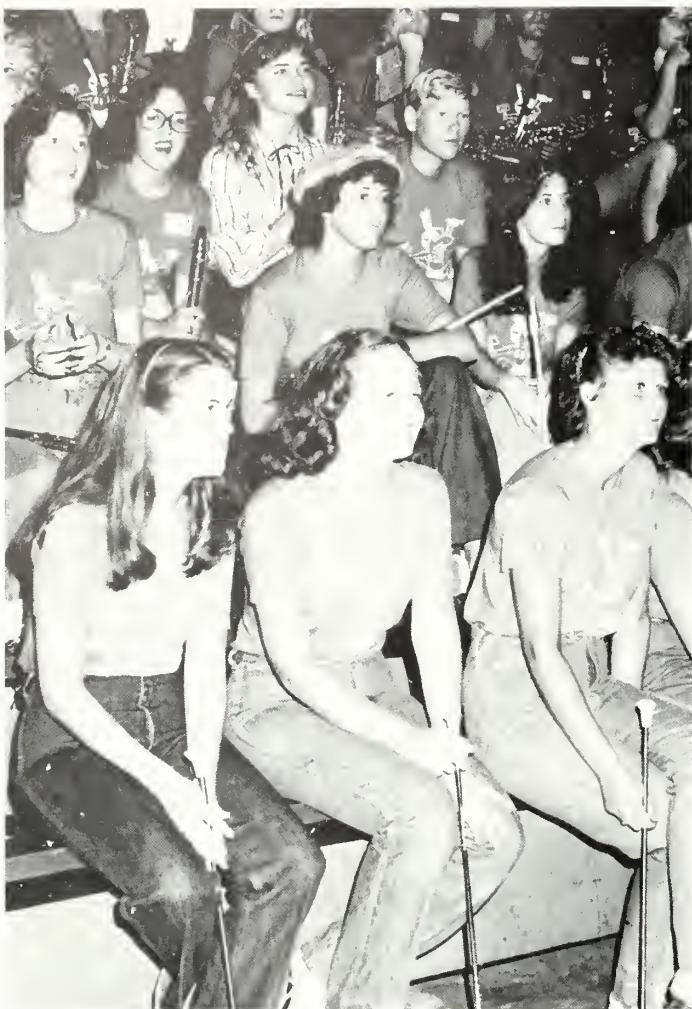

Some Classrooms Aren't Classrooms

Army ROTC offers a non-traditional type of academic environment. Classes are performance-oriented, rather than lecture-oriented. Some course offerings include Wilderness Survival, Mountaineering and Firearms, Marksmanship and Hunter Safety.

Homecoming: A Week Long PARTY

Life In The Dorm Is Uh — Unique

The Dorm

Like most universities across the country, Arkansas State has its share of luxurious accommodations for its students. There are Kays Hall, University Hall, Arkansas Hall, Danner Hall and the beloved Twin Towers. This last mentioned high-rise stretches nine stories into the air, giving students such breathtaking views as the other wing, the ASU Post Office and Arkansas Hall. Life in Twin Towers is not unlike life in most college dormitories, with loud music going on until all hours of the night, and people coming and going at will.

A typical day in Twin Towers usually starts around seven o'clock in the morning, when some unknown passerby gives the student's door a couple of kicks. By this time he has had at least three hours sleep and decides that it is time to get up anyway. The first thing he does upon getting up is to crank up the stereo with the idea that if he can't sleep nobody can.

The next thing to do is to take a shower. He gathers up everything he needs and stumbles down the hall to the shower room, only to find to his dismay, that the three working showers are all being used. Disconcerted, the dorm resident stumbles back to his room, vowing to try again later. After two or three unsuccessful attempts to get into the shower, he has missed his eight o'clock class. He now knows this is going to be a good day.

The next item on the agenda is to start studying for his nine-thirty test. After being interrupted several times by kicks and knocks on the door, he gives up that idea and decides to visit someone down the hall. To his amazement, his friend is still asleep, and he feels real bad about getting him up. After they sit around and talk for awhile the typical dorm resident decides it is time to go to class.

At this point the dorm seems to die, but after dinner things pick up again. The nightly activities begin with the world cup of soccer being played outside a student's room. The next highlight of the night is the first girl. All heads turn as she walks down the hall.

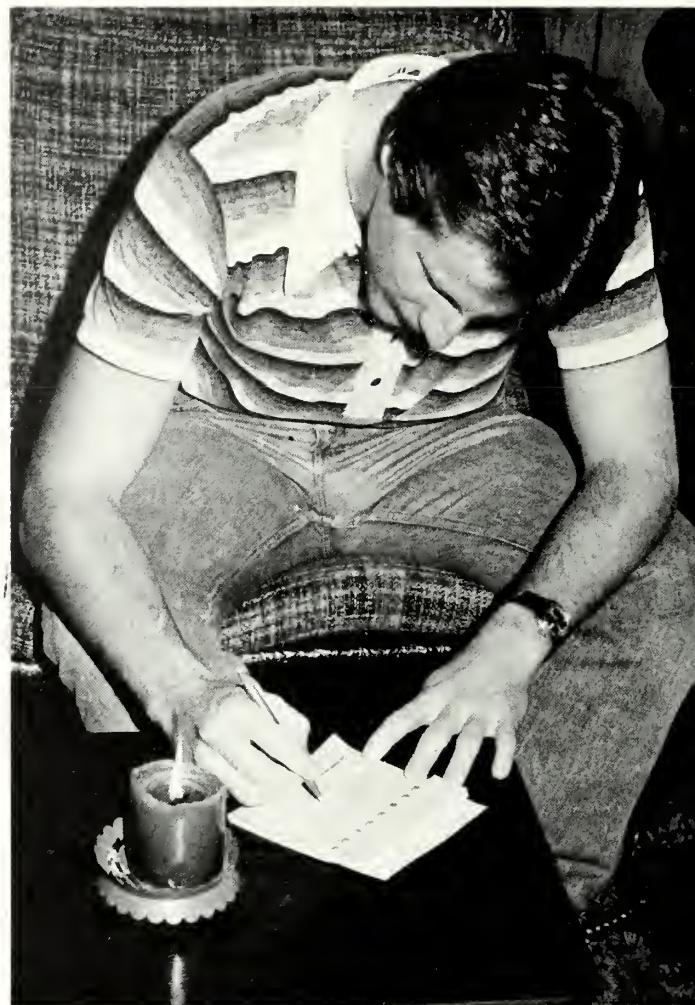

After several more hall activities like bowling, basketball and hockey a fellow decides it is time to turn in. Once back in his room he receives a gift from a close friend — a bottle rocket. How sweet! This means he must open his window and let all that fresh February air into his room. Once in bed he hears another kick on the door. Deciding this means a friend, he opens the door and walks into the hall in his underwear, only to meet the last girl being escorted out of the dorm.

Off-Campus Living

From a Married Student's Point of View

When a couple makes the walk down the aisle and exchanges vows the norm is to settle down to a nice job. But my husband and I shoved aside society's norms for a married couple. We started to college part-time and worked full-time at factories. A year later we moved into a house on the Arkansas State University campus and began going to school full-time while participating in the work-study program.

Life's pressures were much different because we did not have the income we once had. The extra hassles of homework and studying for tests became top priority over household duties. When it got so tough that we started to get to each other we would sit down and talk over our problems. After having a good cry we would always laugh and decide that it was not so bad after all.

In 1979 when the gas crunch came and tuition was raised we talked over the situation. I was willing to quit and work full-time to pay for the extra bills so my husband could finish. But after a lot of prayer we took a unanimous vote of two to zero for me to continue my education. Things did get tough when the bills were all due and the bank statement revealed $3. But the summer before we had been fortunate enough to raise a beautiful garden and I was able to put away enough to easily carry us through the times when the bank account did not allow for groceries.

My husband and I will be very proud when we finally graduate because we put ourselves through college. Even more important than the knowledge we have obtained from classes will be the lessons we have learned through this experience.

Life is like building a house, if the foundation is not sturdy, level and deep the house will crumble under the storms. Since the foundations of our lives will be based on the knowledge that we will have acquired at Arkansas State University, we will make it. In some people's eyes these two years might seem a waste. But Arkansas State University has taught us more about life and how to cope than 80 years of just living. It will all have been worth the trouble and the good times when we walk down the aisle to receive that diploma.

Union Board Provided A Good Time For All

Union Board activities started with a flurry and maintained a steady pace throughout the year. Students were entertained by LeRoux, Mission Mountain Wood Band, FCC, Gene Cotton, Nina Kahle, Gil Eagles and Stokley Carmichael, to name a few. Dances, movies, special food nights and a luau were some of the other ways that students found to break the monotony.

Lecture-Concert Series

The Lecture-Concert Series brought such notables to the Arkansas State University campus as Strom Thurman, Republican Senator from South Carolina, the late Phillippe Cousteau, son of Jacque Cousteau, and Edward Albee, author of "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" during the 1979-80 school year.

My Mentor

Educate?
Yes, that you did.
I entrusted you with my mind.
Entrusted?
Relinquished would be the more accurate word.
You smothered me,
You, with all your grandiloquent knowledge.
Knowledge?
Mere trifles to you,
But my life's breath.
From whence will the fresh air come
When you are weary
From exhalations of your trivia?
Will you bid me on
To fifty minutes of other mentors
So that I might inhale
Their tired details as well?
Impart to me, I beg
The wellspring of your wisdom
That I might freely breathe,
Not gasp.

Ode to Calculus

I think that I shall never see
A sight as lovely as sin of "0",
A formula for the angle "z",
Or a calculus book's company.
As a student who looks at the board all day,
Raising my eyebrows, wondering if "a"
Might be equal to the square of pi
Or possibly "p", I close my eyes.
Upon Doc Smith's bosom my grade is lain
Pondering it, in agony and pain,
Knowing my grades are up to me,
Working, struggling, painstakingly.
Poems are made by fools like me,
But only Doc Smith proves "b equals c."

A Non-traditional College Freshman

On December 1, 1979, I made a big decision about my future: to enroll as a beginning freshman at Arkansas State University. You may ask, "What's so big about that? Thousands of young people do so every year." It is different for me: a 35-year-old mother of two children; high school days are long forgotten. Before making the decision to enter college, I struggled with my conscience for many hours, weighed the pros and cons, worried a lot and finally said, "I can do it."

After making that first big step of deciding, the next step was to take the American College Testing exam, required by all colleges and universities. I was worried — all of the English, math, science and history that had been crammed into my head in my youth had atrophied. After arriving at the testing center very early on the designated morning, I walked into a room filled with approximately 60 high school seniors and I, the only "oldie", came close to throwing in the towel. The long and boring test was the hardest I had ever taken. Later my scores revealed that I had indeed forgotten many facts I had learned previously.

The third big step was registration. A nervous breakdown seemed probable as I listened to stories of long lines, confusion, class schedules, professors desired and classes closed. However, my fears were expelled once I started my registration procedure. I found that many advisors, professors and fellow students will help with forms, directions and questions. One simply needs to forget her fears and ask for guidance. Before the day was completed, I had other freshmen asking me some of the same questions I had asked earlier.

The fourth big step finally arrived. I started classes as a full-fledged freshman and it hasn't been easy for me. Being a full-time mother, housewife and student requires a lot of discipline. I had to develop new reading and study habits and rearrange my time spent at home. As a commuter, I get up at 5:30 a.m. leave at 6:30 a.m., and drive 60 miles to school.

My attempt to obtain a college education may prove to be a long, hard road. Low grades, lack of time, long hours of study, bad weather and the boredom of commuting may block my path, but I will work hard. I weighed the prospects and decided this was the best course of action for me.

Coming Back

In May, if all goes as planned, I will graduate from Arkansas State University with a Bachelors of Art degree in English. For me this will mean the end of an undergraduate career that started in 1939. This long delayed graduation was certainly not anticipated when I enrolled in college 41 years ago. But then in 1939 World War II was something President Roosevelt was going to keep us out of, and the idea of women soldiers was ridiculous. By 1943 we were in war, and I was a woman soldier. But when the war ended my most earnest hope was for a family-centered life.

I had five children by the time the 1960's arrived, and Viet Nam became the third war I was to live through. It was an emotionally unsettling time on a national level, and also on a personal level. A family tragedy forced me out of my narrow world of children and child-centered activities into active protest against the kind of services available for my exceptional child. In an attempt to understand the national problems I found I was still reasoning with the ideas I had assimilated in 1939. I found that the roles of wife, mother and Girl Scout leader were woefully inadequate training for affecting any kind of social change. So, in 1968 I decided to seek a broader perspective.

When I first returned to college I was frightened. Then I was surprised. Keeping up with the class was not all that hard. In the big world outside the university trying to obtain information from professionals who had jobs to protect, egos to bolster, or comfortable routines to maintain had ended, too often, in power struggles from which I inevitably retreated feeling inept and stupid. In the peaceful libraries and the lecture halls of the university the questioning student was welcome. I found this wonderfully exhilarating.

Since then, whenever my battles with the world at large have become too painful, I have found solace in the university. In the process of coming back I have gained some very valuable self-knowledge. I have learned the difference between assertiveness and aggressiveness. I have also learned that social change does not come easy. For this reason, I am looking forward to obtaining a master's degree in an area that will enable me to be a more effective voice for change.

My university career has proven to me that we never really know what we can do until we try. For this I am grateful. Also, I am grateful for those professors I have studied under who were so enthusiastic about their fields of knowledge that they managed to give me a broader vision and to stimulate new interests. I am grateful also for my contacts with fellow students with whom I have been able to share the struggles and the excitement of learning.

SGA President Speaks

Who says the thing known as the "political machine" cannot be beaten? All it takes is a little hard work on the candidate's behalf, some dedicated workers who believe in the candidate and a platform which the students believe is the most beneficial to them.

The Independent Student League campaign in the spring of 1979 probably has set a trend that will be followed in campus elections in the years to come. We worked twice as hard and tried to be first in every phase of campaigning. We handed leaflets out left and right. You saw something about us at breakfast, at lunch and at supper. You even woke up with us in the morning with some type of leaflet we had handed out at 3 a.m. that morning. We had small yard signs running up and down the campus sidewalks. But most important, we ran a personal campaign. We talked to as many different groups and as many people on a one to one basis as we could.

After the election, presuming you are elected, the work doesn't stop. You still lose a lot of sleep and you don't devote the amount of time to the books that you should. But you do keep a positive frame of mind and do the best job possible, because you realize students have given you their trust through their vote and that is a large responsibility to live up to.

Changes Mind—

Whillock Will Leave ASU

By REBECCA RASBERRY

Arkansas State University President Carl S. Whillock is resigning his position in higher education.

Whillock — who was prepared to announce his resignation at a special ASU Board of Trustees meeting on Dec. 18 and changed his mind — has changed his mind again.

He will be leaving ASU to assume a managerial position with Arkansas Electric Cooperative Corporation AECI and Arkansas Electric Cooperatives Inc. (AECI) Feb. 1. That was the job Whillock had been offered at the time of the December board meeting.

At about 11:30 this morning he arrived at the office of ASU Board Chairman Richard Hergot in Little Rock and tendered his resignation.

Refusal To Teach Pledge—

Teacher's Firing

Decision Stands

Hergot said he was "stunned" and "very disappointed" that Whillock plans to leave the University.

He said a special meeting of the board has been called for Wednesday afternoon and at that time the board will formally consider Whillock's resignation which was tendered to Hergot by Whillock late this morning.

Whillock issued the following formal statement this morning:

After a very difficult decision-making process, I have submitted my resignation as President of Arkansas State University to the ASU Board of Trustees to assume the duties of general manager of Arkansas Electric Cooperatives Inc., and the Arkansas Electric Cooperative Corporation on Feb. 1.

"Our nation is experiencing an energy crisis now, but often times crises can become challenges. And these challenges can become opportunities to develop innovative and creative methods of meeting the electric energy needs of our society."

The electric energy industry is going to be an exciting area in this decade, and I look forward to being a part of it. The 30-year-old president continued. I am proud to be joining a system of electric cooperatives which I believe is an example of the success exhibited for more than 40 years by a national consumer movement.

"My decision to resign my post at Arkansas State is partly based on personal considerations. For 28 years I have served in public office or worked for the state or federal government. These have been wonderful, rewarding years for me, and I am grateful for the opportunities and rewards I have enjoyed."

The people of ASU and Northeast

Arkansas have been especially cooperative and supportive. My time at Arkansas State has been very satisfying and I will always be grateful for the experience.

However, after weighing all factors, it is my decision to leave government service and higher education for work in the private sector."

The statement was signed by (See WHILLOCK Page 2)

Uncertainty was the mood of Arkansas State University as it moved from the seventies into a new decade. Echoing the dramatic and abrupt international incidents that closed the seventies, the resignation of former President Carl S. Whillock set off a series of shock waves which reverberated throughout the campus.

But the seventies brought much more to ASU than the resignation of a president. Change, controversy and advancement have all been realized in this ten year span.

The campus changed a great deal in a decade. When curfew regulations were dropped and an intervisitation policy was established in 1973, newspapers referred to it as student "liberation," which indeed it was. The civil rights movement acted to increase the number of black students and instructors at ASU. In fact, the first black instructor to teach here was hired in 1970. Student activists united to form the Black Student Union and several fraternities and sororities.

The sounds of the seventies at ASU were hammers, nails, drills and saws as new buildings were constructed, old buildings renovated and a main road built.

Snow, sleet and hail produced some of the harshest winters in this part of the country. For the first time since 1917 University officials cancelled classes for a day in February 1978 when five inches of snow blanketed the campus grounds.

New kinds of students appeared in the seventies. Middle-aged men and women and those over age 65 came to the University to share classes with the 20-year-olds.

But the seventies were not without its problems, notably the controversy surrounding the 1976 homecoming queen election and the attendance policy instituted in 1979. Homecoming festivities were damped considerably when the Greeks withdrew all their homecoming queen candidates and refused to build the traditional homecoming displays. They were protesting a decision made by then President Ross Pritchard who had called for a new election after he heard complaints from the Black Student Union. Another controversial issue was the vastly unpopular attendance policy which regulated student attendance in freshman and sophomore level classes. This policy was still in effect at the time of publication.

The University advanced in numerous ways during the seventies. Academically, many bachelors and masters degree programs were added to the curriculum. It was an especially good time for sports. Two students, Thomas Hill and Earl Bell, competed in the Olympics with Hill bringing home the bronze for his efforts. In addition, the National Collegiate Athletic Association classified ASU as a Division I school in football. Another notable advancement was the formation of the Lecture-Concert Series and the Union Board which have provided students with quality entertainment and well-known speakers.

The seventies should be remembered as a time of growth for ASU. When compared with the problems or "growing pains" of the University, the individual and collective achievements continue to shine through. In the midst of uncertainty the University remained strong.

A kind of dismal, hopeless mood settled over the United States in the seventies. The American gaze turned inward. The resignation of President Richard Nixon and his involvement in the Watergate cover-up had the effect of disillusioning many citizens. The greed and corruption that was uncovered in the Watergate

Court Fate Of Nixon Unanswered

WASHINGTON — Almost no one in official Washington wants President Nixon to go to jail, but his resignation last unanswered the question of how he'll stay out of court.

He and his former aides, several of whom already are awaiting trial, still face numerous potential criminal and civil charges, and Watergate seems destined to stay in the news for a long time to come.

Mr. Nixon could avoid prosecution if Vice President Gerald R. Ford, after becoming president, grants immunity to him. The Justice Department, specifically Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon A. Jaworski, also would agree not to press charges.

Neither Ford nor Jaworski, however, has said whether either of those courses is in the offing. And even if Mr. Nixon did receive immunity from criminal prosecution, the news could be subjected to a series of civil lawsuits by victims of administration-inspired break-ins and wiretaps. He is almost certain to be subpoenaed as a witness at the Watergate enterprise trial next month and other legal proceedings involving his one-time advisers.

Mr. Nixon was chosen for the honor because he is the "most outstanding American,"

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has chances of surviving the Watergate scandal. He announced that he would resign today in the national interest. He conceded that

Vice President Gerald R. Ford will be sworn in as the nation's 38th president at 11 a.m. CDT by Justice Warren E. Burger, who was flying in from Florida to administer the oath.

The White House said that Mr. Nixon would leave by plane to the executive mansion Friday afternoon and fly to their San Clemente (Calif.) home. The Nixon family will use Air Force One, the presidential jet, but another government plane.

Mr. Nixon and Ford, both are making history.

Ford will become the first vice president not elected by the voters to become president and Mr. Nixon becomes the first president of the United States to resign.

57 2 Years in Office, Ford Follows Agnew

Mr. Nixon has been president for 6 years. Ford became vice president 10 months ago after Spiro T. Agnew resigned after admitting income tax evasion.

After 14 of his closest aides had been convicted or indicted, the ultimate victim of Watergate, Mr. Nixon said in a nationally televised address that he was resigning in the trials, corresponded with the mood of the times.

The seventies was the "me decade." Hundreds of cheap paperbacks were printed expounding to the "I'm terrific and to hell with everyone else" philosophy. Robert Ringer's bestseller, Looking Out For No. 1 was the ultimate in the library of aggressive narcissism.

Young people seeking truth gave up their material possessions and family ties to join cults. The mass suicide which occurred at Jonestown under the direction of Rev. Jim Jones showed the tremendous power that could be wielded by a cult leader.

The Three Mile Island incident, in which small amounts of radioactive steam and water were released, turned many Americans against the use of nuclear energy. Dick Thornburgh, Governor of Pennsylvania said, "It is the place where the worst fear of modern man almost came to pass."

It was during the seventies that the United States lost a war — Vietnam. By March 29, 1973 the last U.S. combat troops left the embattled country.

Inflation added financial burdens to many Americans. There was a fear that America's history of astonishing material indulgence was about to end. Rising interest rates and too much money in circulation placed homes, new cars and other major purchases out of reach for many families.

The seventies brought drastic changes in life styles, leaving the structure of the family permanently altered. Marriage was conceived of as only one extreme of a range of possibilities from casual dating to living together. There was an abundance of single parents and married couples who had chosen to remain childless.

And in the last few months remaining in the seventies came two of the biggest blows to the United States. Iranian students stormed the American embassy in Tehran taking over 50 American diplomats and employees as hostages.

And Russia moved in to take over Afghanistan and impose martial law just a few weeks later. As the seventies closed many public figures were saying that the two incidents had drawn Americans as close as they had been since World War II.

But it is unfair to say the decade was completely dismal. America gave itself a grand 200th birthday party on July 4, 1976, and it had a big part in helping to lead Egypt and Israel to live in peace. On the whole, Americans survived the seventies well and the country managed to remain united into the eighties.

IYC Extended

A single bell pealed at the beginning of 1979, ringing in the International Year of the Child. And before the end of the year 115 nations has sponsored programs benefitting children.

Hunger and illiteracy among children were confronted in underdeveloped countries while industrialized nations studied broken home traumas, child abuse, drug addiction, teenage suicide and instituted programs to treat these and other problems of children.

In the United States President Jimmy Carter appointed a 29-member commission and several organizations worked with legislation affecting the lives of children.

But the bell which rang for children in 1979 will continue into 1980. Many states have declared an extension to the observance of IYC into the year ahead.

Some of the young faces featured here are children who participated in the Arkansas State University Day Care Center and the Cottage of Hope programs.

Children of the Seventies

I often wonder why this time was chosen for me to live in. I sometimes think I would have been happier in another time, some glorious time where I would have surely been a knight, or some other type of hero. I can not be sure if I am a reincarnation of some evil man who has been forced to live in this time to be punished for my sins, or a saint who is being blessed by getting a chance to live again in a better time. In any event, I am sometimes a confused young man who has been tossed into a life and a time that puzzles me, without even the chance to debate the situation. Though born in the fifties, and raised in the sixties, I am a child of the seventies.

My generation was forced to grow into adulthood in a time that mocked ideas such as faith and trust, in a time that belittled concepts of love and honor. Our political leaders broke our trust by being involved in a series of scandals that left the rest of us wondering if we should ever trust them again. Our religious leaders did not offer us an answer to our needs. In fact, some led blind followers to their deaths, causing many of us to fear them. We have been bombarded with books and movies depicting the act of love as being cheap and dirty. Many of us were forced to choose between fighting a war we did not believe in, or fleeing the country we loved. We were not sure which was honor and which was cowardice.

My generation was also blessed with new insights in the seventies. We have new ideas, new beliefs, and most important, new problems to overcome. We are the generation that must deal with problems such as nuclear energy, pollution, finding new sources of fuel, and the toughest problem of all, learning to live in peace. The latter is not a new problem, but is one that has been present as long as mankind. We, however, must solve this problem or face the extinction of the human race.

There were also some good times in the seventies. New music, new dances and a relaxation of the moral code gave our generation freedoms that no generation before us ever had — freedom to grow emotionally and spiritually, or freedom to destroy ourselves. We learned from the mistakes of the children of the sixties. We were able to avoid many of their mistakes only to make our own. Living through our mistakes, however, helped us to realize who and what we were and are.

I came of age in the seventies. I lived each day, through good and bad. The seventies was a mixture of pleasure and pain, of disappointment and exhilaration, of losing trust, then finding it again. We learned to trust in ourselves, and in doing so we found we could trust in others again. We are the children of the seventies. We are the men and women of the eighties. We are an important part of the future.

ASU Track Team Places Second At Conference

The Arkansas State University track team finished an excellent season in the spring of 1979, placing second in the Southland Conference championship. Lamar University took the first place position. The two-day Southland Conference meet was held at the McNeese State University track complex at Lake Charles.

Junior Ronnie Green of Memphis won the 800 meter run, while senior Bruce Metcalf finished third in the event.

Paul Kassen of Festus, Mo., a junior, won the Southland Conference 3000-meter steeple-chase for the second year in a row.

High jumper Ricky DeWees of Pine Bluff, also a junior, came into the conference as the league record holder with the 6 feet and 10 and 1/2 inches he leaped as a freshman. In the 1978

Southland Conference, an injury limited him to third place. But DeWees bounced back in 1979, winning the high jump and setting a new league record of 7 feet.

In the pole vaulting competition, ASU athletes captured first, second, third and fifth places. Sophomore Jordan W. Kerrell of Fair Grove, Mo., won the Southland Conference pole vaulting championship and team mate Paul Pilla of St. Louis, a junior, finished second. Third and fifth places were taken by Andy Pintus of Jonesboro, a senior and David Cook.

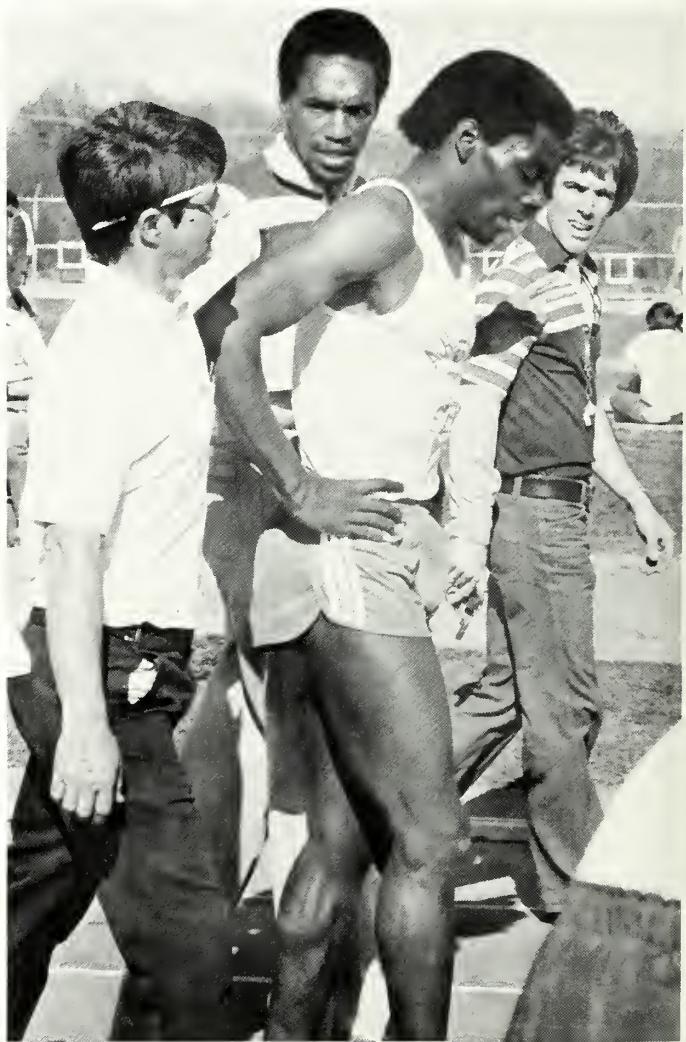

Completing the track team's string of victories were senior Glenn Wimer of Strasburg, Pa., who won the 5000 meter run championship and junior Ricky Maclin of St. Louis who finished third in the 110 meter race.

Tennis Players Triumph In '79 Season

The men's and women's tennis teams worked hard this past season to build the image of Arkansas State University sports in the tennis area. Among the hard workers on the men's team were John Sutherland of Sarasota, Fla., Robert Doherty of Wynne, Jimmy Gunnels of Caruthersville, Mo., Tim Rasch of Little Rock, Wayne Gibson of Malden, Mo., and Kenny Wong of West Memphis. Members of the triumphant women's team were Marcia Gibson of Jonesboro, J. J. Bullington of Caruthersville, Mo., Cindy Quarry of Jonesboro, Cathy Dodd of Caruthersville, Mo., Becky Wiskotoni of Elkhart, Ind., and Mary Beth Terry of Memphis, Tenn.

The men finished the season winning three games out of thirteen. The women's team had an admirable 11 game win streak with only two losses. In addition, the Tomahawks tennis players captured the number one team trophy in the state tournament.

The Tommies went to the Southwest Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women Tournament held in Ada, Ok. There they finished number five out of 16 teams. Several of the Tommies excelled individually as well, in the tournament play. Marcia Gibson placed number one flight in singles while Cindy Quarry won the number three flight position. Winning the number five flight position was Becky Wiskotoni.

J. J. Bullington and Becky Wiskotoni paired and placed in the flight number two position in doubles. Another pair, Cathy Todd and Tina Richardson, won the number three flight position.

Janet Oates coaches both the men's and women's tennis teams.

Team Opens Season With New Members

A young Arkansas State University golf team opened its 1980 season when the Indians teed off against the University of Missouri-Rolla in a dual match at Fredericktown, Mo.

The Indians, under the leadership of first-year Coach Neil Abel, had only two experienced hands on an eight-member squad.

Two-year letterman Roddy Thrasher of Jonesboro, last year's top hand with a 77.1 average, led the contingent, with chief support coming from letterman Keith Bogard of Rockford, Ill.

Other members of the squad included sophomore Dan Franz of Senath, Mo., and freshmen Chuck Gschwend of Jonesboro, Jeff Melton of Gosnell, Jeff Wren of Pocahontas, Clay Hawley of Dallas, Tex., and Lanier Robinson of Holly Springs, Miss.

The Indians, whose season climaxed April 21-23 with the Southland Conference Championships at Calhoun, La., played two other tournaments and 11 dual matches.

Here was ASU's complete 1980 schedule:

- March 3 — Missouri-Rolla (at Fredericktown, Mo.)
- March 10 — McNeese State (at Lake Charles, La.)
- March 11 — McNeese State (at Lake Charles, La.)
- March 13-14 — Nicholls State Invitational (at Thibodaux, La.)
- April 2 — Arkansas—Little Rock (at North Little Rock)
- April 3 — Arkansas—Little Rock (at North Little Rock)
- April 10-12 — Northeast Louisiana Invitational (at Monroe, La.)
- April 21-23 — Southland Conference Championships (at Calhoun, La.)

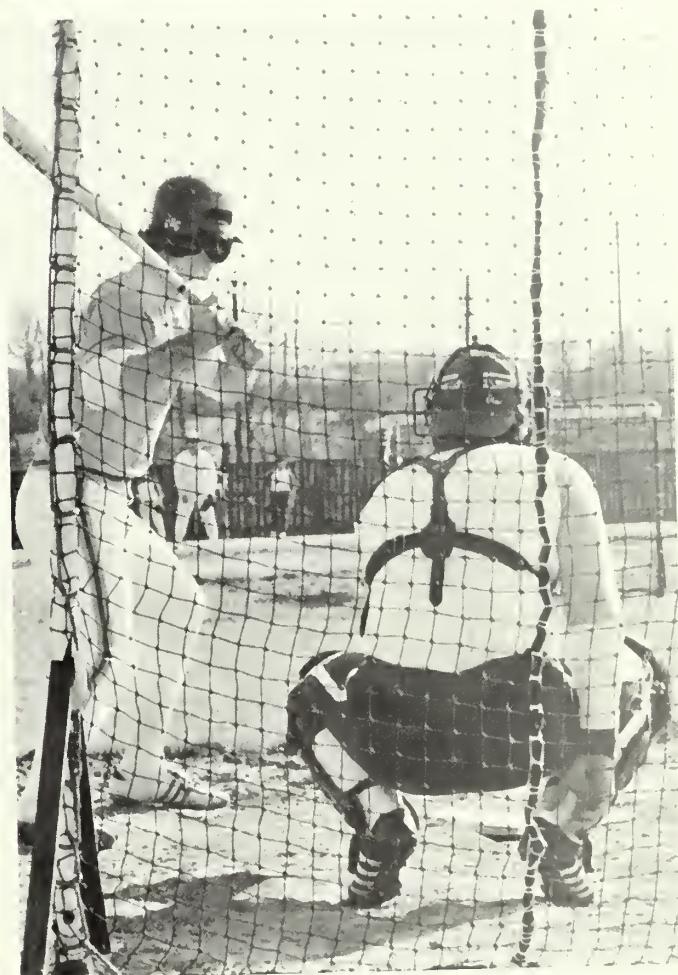

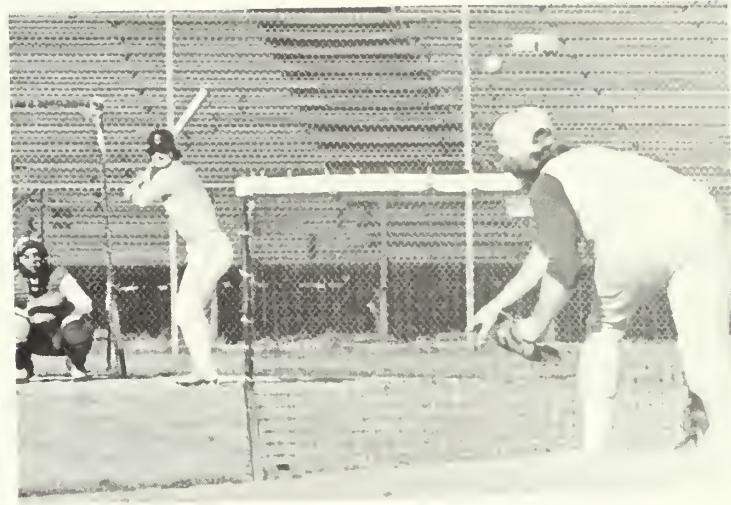

Young Indians to Play 47-Game Schedule

A nine-game road trip to Texas during Spring break opened the 1980 baseball season and a 47-game schedule. Coach Rich Johnson fielded an 'almost new' team as only seven lettermen returned from the previous season. Despite the new faces, Johnson was optimistic about the season and especially about the team's batting ability. The SLC was split into two divisions this season with ASU competing with Louisiana Tech and Texas-Arlington for the North title, with the winner playing the South winner for the SLC championship.

ASU Tomahawks Win Again!

The Tomahawks volleyball team, known as fierce competitors throughout the Mid-South have roared through yet another winning season.

The highlight of the Tommies season came when the team won the University of Tennessee-Martin Tournament.

Among the other numerous bright spots in the women team's exceptional record this past year was the defeat of the Lady Tigers of Memphis State University in the MSU tourney. Another highlight came about when the Tommies defeated the University of Alabama in a game for the women's tournament. Out of the ten teams entered in the Mississippi University for Women's Tournament the Tomahawks made the top four, comprised of Arkansas State University, the University of Alabama, Florida State University and Memphis State University.

The Tommies were declared the number one women's volleyball team for the fourth consecutive time in the state tournament held at Hendrix College at Conway in early November. They entered the tournament with a match against Hendrix College in which they emerged as winners. They then entered the semi-finals, playing against Southern Arkansas University. Again, the Tomahawks triumphed with a win over their adversary. In the finals, ASU was up against Arkansas College. Continuing their history of success the Tomahawks won and retained their status as the top intercollegiate women's volleyball team in the state of Arkansas. They went on to play in the regional tournament at Sam Houston University.

The type of game plan used by Coach Kay Woodiel varied from game to game depending on the opponents' weaknesses. The major factor in the Tommies' 68 game win streak is the tradition of playing winning volleyball at ASU. The Tomahawks have the longest current winning streak in any sport of any kind, male or female, in the nation. Those selected to the All-Conference team were Cheryl "Bucky" Buckmeier, Pat Baker and Karen McClendon. Cheryl was noted for her strong defensive play, Pat, for her excellent leadership and Karen, for her all-around talent in the game.

Indians Struggle Through 1980

As the 1980 season loomed in front of the Arkansas State University Indians, the talk was excited and anxious.

After all, the team had a lot to look forward to. They had a new head coach, Larry Lacewell, who took over the post after serving as a volunteer during the past season. Lacewell welcomed a good crop of freshman players to go along with his already experienced team which had 22 seniors. Three of those seniors were back from the All-Conference team. Specialist Joe Slayton, the punter, placekicker Doug Dobbs and offensive lineman Jerry Castor.

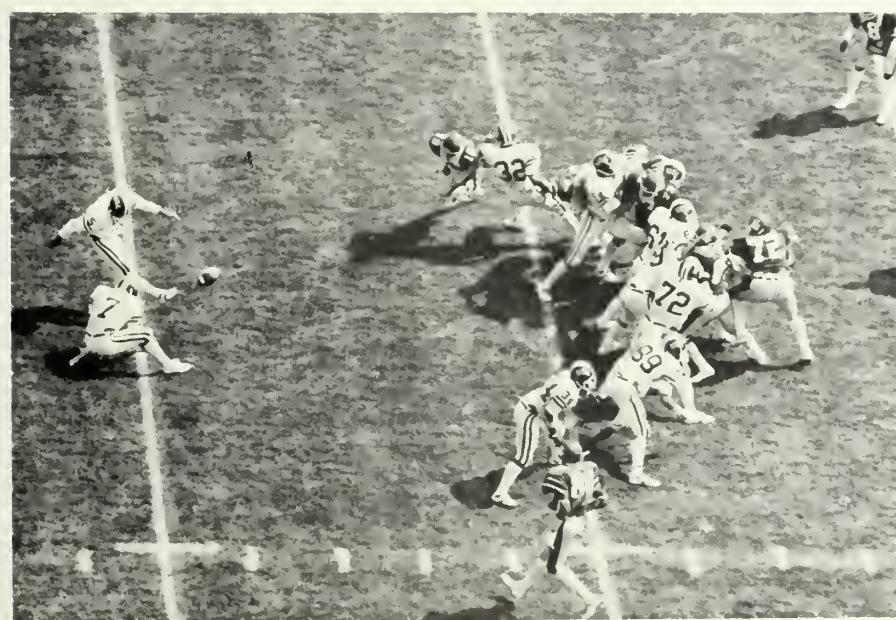

A lot of excitement was flowing around Jonesboro as the home opener against East Texas drew close. And the fans came out in full force to support the Tribe by putting the largest crowd ever in Indian Stadium, 17,481. That figure didn't last long though, as 17,638 came a few weeks later to the ABC televised game.

The Tribe beat East Texas State in that opener and looked ahead to Northeast Louisiana the following week. But the Indians found another tough group of Indians as they lost to the NLU Tribe by one point.

That game seemed to set the tempo for the rest of the season as the Indians were to drop 6 more. ASU finished the year with a 4-7 record, the other three victories coming over Southern Illinois, Richmond and Louisiana Tech, who ASU had not beaten since 1975.

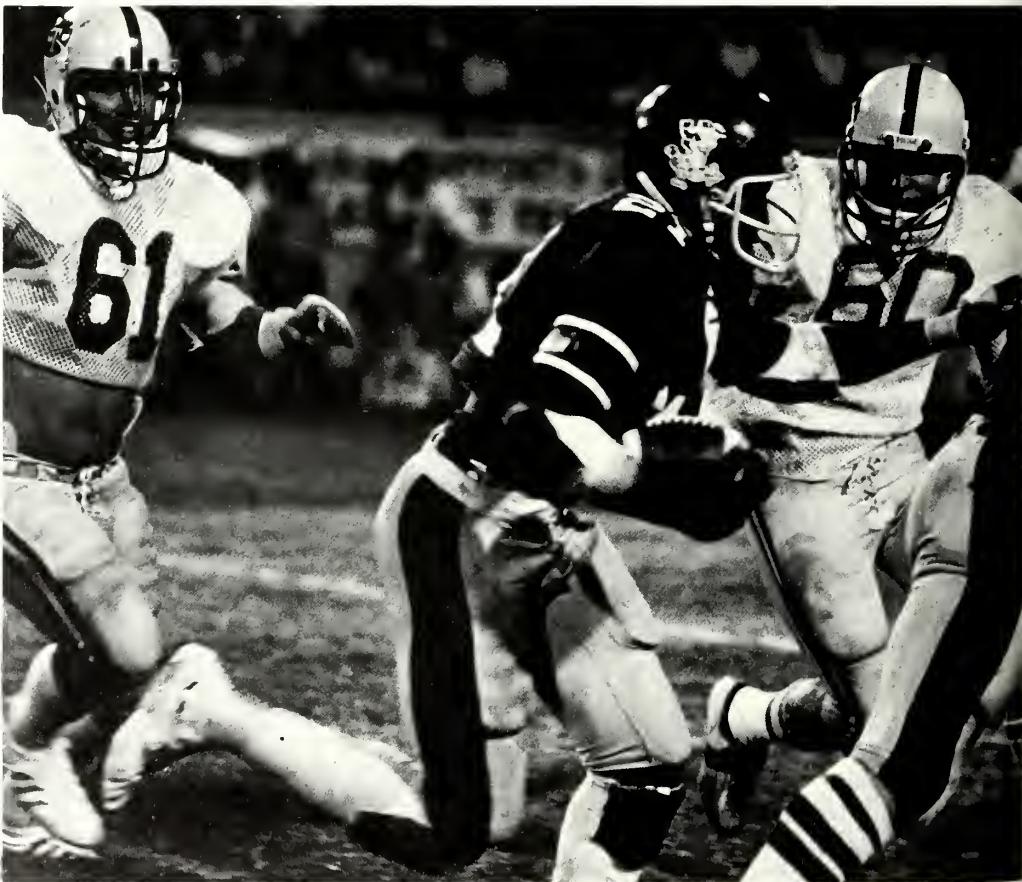

Tribe Wins Home Opener Over ETSU

East Texas State arrived in Jonesboro to find a fired up team and a town just as excited to go right along with the Indians.

The Tribe jumped off to an early lead and never had to look back as they downed ETSU 24-14 in the season opener before a record crowd.

Alex Herman caught the first touchdown pass of the game and Anthony Williams scored twice after him. Doug Dobbs added a 27-yard field goal to round out the tallies, and ASU had it's initial win of 1979.

Tribe Falls Just One Point Short; Bounces Back To Drop SIU

After their win over East Texas State, the Indians went on the road to face Northeast Louisiana in Monroe, La.

Again, the Tribe took the lead, but NLU came back to pull within two points. With only seven seconds left on the clock NLU kicked a 32-yard field goal to win the game, 18-17.

The one point loss took its toll on the Indians but with Southern Illinois in Jonesboro the next week there was no time to look back.

SIU jumped out to a 13-0 lead before ASU started to make their move. Gene Bradley got things going with a 1-yard dive for the first TD and then a 7-yard pass to Jerome Miller for another.

A Doug Dobbs field goal and a 51-yard touchdown run by Lee Charles Wright gave the Indians a 24-16 win.

ASU, ABC Together For A Football First

Take 17,638 people and put them into Indian Stadium, add some ABC television cameras scattered throughout the rows of fans, add ASU and Southwestern Louisiana, two football teams hungry for a Southland Conference win, mix together on a sunny Saturday and stand back to watch.

And watch is what many people did on September 29 as ASU's first televised game went on the ABC network as a regionally shown game. The game was telecast to a four state area, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas and Mississippi.

The campus was in a frenzy all week trying to get all the ABC requests filled and to welcome the crew in ASU style. A huge sign in lights on the front of the Reng Center welcomed ABC as did the whole town on every business marquee.

The largest crowd to ever attend a Arkansas State University football game filled the stadium with banners and signs saying "hi" to Mom and proclaiming ASU as "The University" in Arkansas.

The field got a new paint job with a bigger than life Jumpin' Joe in the end zone. The hot air balloons encircled the stadium rim and the parachuters fell from the sky to the 50-yard line with the game ball.

And despite it all the ballgame got under way and on schedule. Announcers Dave Nitz and Ben Martin commented on ASU quarterback Gene Bradley calling him an "experienced athlete who is an effective option runner and forecasting the kicking game to be one of the keys to a victory for both teams.

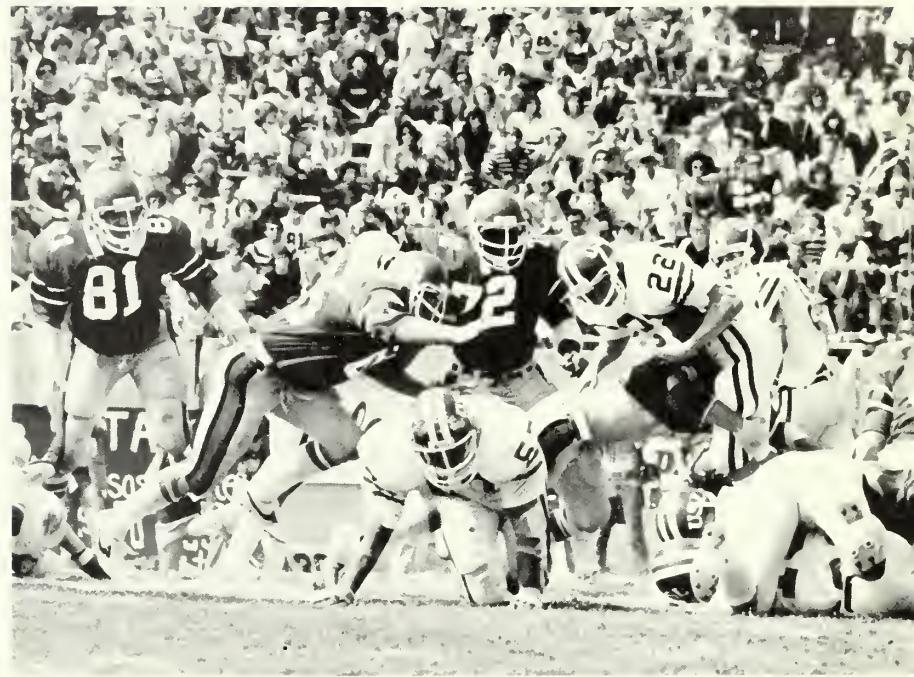

Halftime featured ASU's dressing facilities. After showing the temporary trailers in which ASU is now using, the cameras moved to the new building under construction. As an architect's drawing of the finished product was displayed, Martin commented, "This is going to be a first class facility all the way."

Nitz and Martin proved right as the Indians took a nine point lead thanks to the foot of placekicker Doug Dobbs. His 22-, 36-, and 35-yard fieldgoals put the Tribe out in front again and earned him the Chevrolet Player of the Game. Punter Joe Slayton's 54-yard average kept the Ragin' Cajuns out of scoring position throughout most of the contest, but USL came up with 13 points late in the fourth quarter and handed the Indians another sour defeat, 13-9.

Indians Fall To Lamar 20-10; Cardinals Come From Behind To Shock Tribe

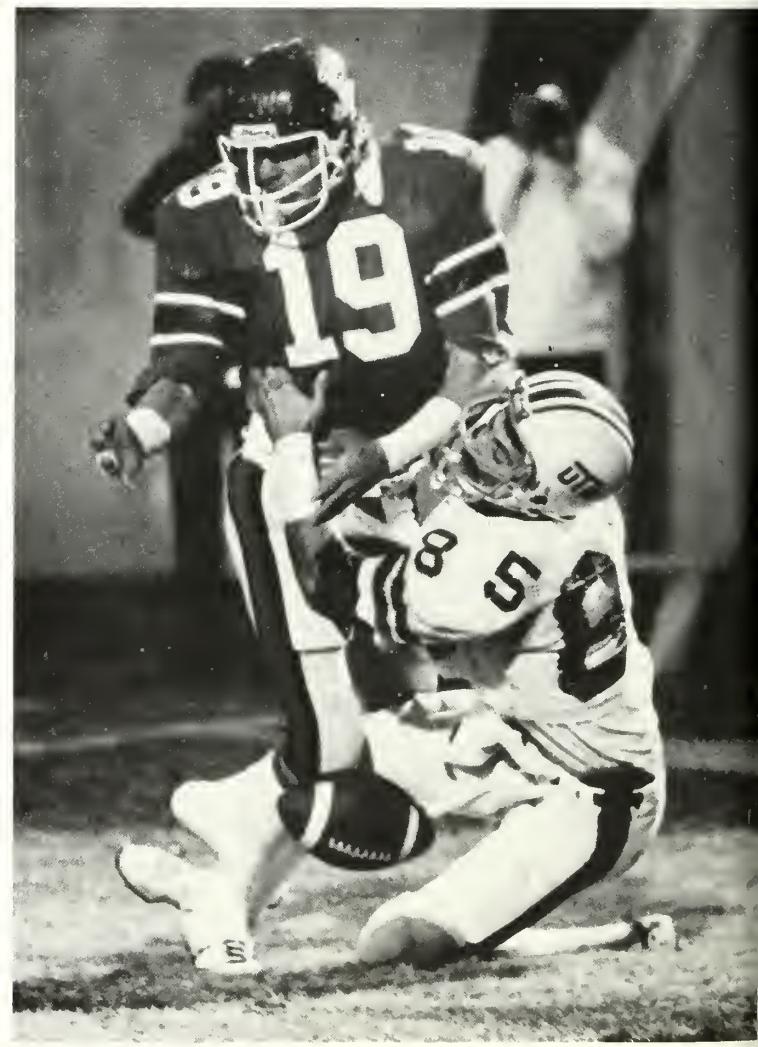

With the season on its final leg, the Indians started Homecoming week looking forward to their contest with the Lamar University Cardinals.

The Indians quickly moved out to a 10-point lead on a one-yard run by Bobby Young and a 20-yard field goal by Doug Dobbs. But as the game wore on, the Tribe found themselves on the short end of a 20-10 score.

Arkansas State now stood at 4-4 on the year with only one more game at Indian Stadium, Texas-Arlington next Saturday.

Tribe Drops Final Three; Ends 4-7

Hungry for another win, the Tribe hoped to repeat last year's victory over Texas-Arlington. However, those hopes quickly faded and the Indians found themselves on the very short end of a 56-18 score. The Indians got points on a Doug Dobbs field goal, and short runs by Gene Bradley and Anthony Williams.

The following week the Indians traveled to Wyoming and the bitter cold. At kickoff it was 29 degrees. Williams and Lee Charles Wright both ran for ASU touchdowns, but it wasn't enough as the Tribe fell again 7-14.

In one week, ASU went from the frigid North to balmy Hattiesburg, Mississippi. However, the warmer climate had little effect on ASU. The Indians struggled through three quarters of scoreless football until they scored on a pass from Bradley to Jerome Miller. The two-point conversion failed. At the final buzzer the Indians were behind 14-6 and ended the disappointing season 4-7.

Tribe Responds to Exciting Crowds

Arkansas State's basketball Indians had a great season in 1979-80. Although their record of 15-12 was the same as the previous season, the playing climate was entirely different than last year — the crowd has come alive. Whether you credit Sparky, the crowd, the team or the coach, major college basketball arrived at Indian Fieldhouse this year.

Along with its 15-12 season record, the Tribe grabbed a tie for second place in the SLC, and for most of the season, led the league.

With this new-found excitement came record crowds which added to the Tribe's performance. Beginning in 1975, average attendance was 1,752, 1,843, 1,865 and 2,401. This year the average was 3,852 per game some 1,400 more than last year. With this backing, the Tribe won ten while losing only three on the home court. On the road the record was five wins and nine losses.

Four seniors closed out their careers at ASU — forward Marvin Jarrett of West Helena, guard Toby McCammon of Iola, Kan., forward Jessie Harris of Youngstown, Ohio and guard Maurice Robertson of Memphis, Tenn. Jarrett became only the sixth Indian to finish his career in the top ten in both scoring and rebounding. McCammon moved into the eighth spot in all-time free throw shooting by hitting on 81.8 percent of his shots.

As Usual, Tomahawks Have Good Season

The Tomahawks had another successful season as they won 15 while losing only five and finished second in the Arkansas Women's Intercollegiate Sports Association in pre-playoff play. The Tommies earned a berth in the state playoffs and advanced to the semifinals and finished the regular season with a 19-8 record.

Sue Jayroe, a senior from Palestine, led the Tommies in the state playoffs, as she had during the season. She was named to the All-AWISA team for the second straight year. Only two other Tommies in history have made the team twice.

The Tomahawks also placed two players on the honorable mention list — sophomore Martha Higgins of Joiner and freshman Mary Graddy of Hoxie.

Second year Coach Sara Wooley was named Coach of the Year by the league.

Two Tommies finished their careers — center Jayroe and forward Sandra Walmsley of Biggers. Walmsley has been one of the most consistent Tommies, since transferring from SBC, and ranked third in scoring this season.

Jayroe played four years at ASU and owns 12 Tomahawk records, a mark that's not likely to be duplicated for quite a while. Jayroe led the Tommies in both scoring and rebounding this season and became the first woman at ASU to reach the 1,000 mark in both points and rebounds in a career.

At INDIAN deadline time, the Tommies only needed one victory in the double-elimination regional tournament to become the winningest team in ASU history — mens' or women's.

The 1979-80 edition of Who's Who Among Students In American Universities and Colleges will carry the names of 49 Arkansas State University students who were selected as being among the country's most outstanding campus leaders.

They were selected because of their academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and future potential.

More than 1,200 students were selected this year from institutions of higher education in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and several foreign countries. Outstanding students have been honored in the annual directory since it was first published in 1934.

A new dimension was added this year as those selected were honored at a Who's Who Recognition Night Dec. 6. The students and their parents were honored by the deans of their respective colleges and departments and presented their certificates in the Ballroom of the Reng Center. A reception followed in the Formal Lounge.

Those selected appear in this section in alphabetical order with their hometowns and majors listed, as well as some of the organizations in which each participated during their years at Arkansas State University.

Greeks

Rush Week

Rush-rush-rush — that's what the procedure for finding one's place in the Greek world is called, and the name is an appropriate one. Those who decide to go through "rush," "rush" from party to another. It's fast paced and exciting, but a lot of serious thinking takes place during rush. Individuals must decide which group they are most suited to, and groups must make the same decision. Rush is meeting lots of people, trying to remember lots of names, having lots of fun, but even more, rush is a chance to find a home away from home.

PKA Little Olympics

Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity annually sponsors the Little Olympics where members of the different sororities compete in various events and the winning group is awarded $100 for its philanthropy. The entire affair usually winds up in the mud. Zeta Tau Alpha successfully defended its 1978 championship.

TKE Talent Show

Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity annually sponsors the Talent Show to raise money for their philanthropy, St. Jude's Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

All of the Greek groups on campus participate in the show by doing individual acts that range from singing to guitar playing.

Sig Eps Hold First Fight Nite

ASU had its first night of boxing as the Indian Fieldhouse was transposed into an arena with the ring in the center.

Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity held the event, staged as "Fight Nite." Boxers from each fraternity competed during the two days of bouts.

The group raised over $700 which it donated to the University in the way of a special gift.

KD Walk-A-Thon

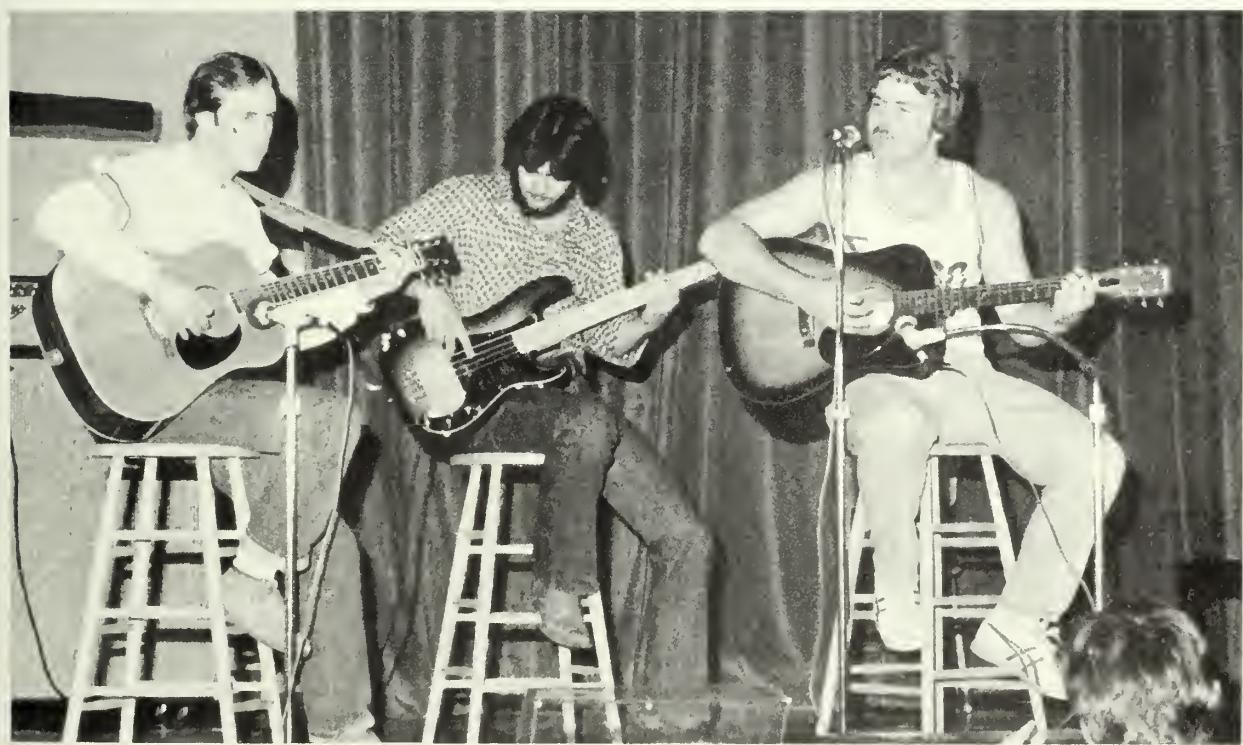

Each year the Delta Kappa chapter of Kappa Delta sponsors a Walk-a-Thon. Trophies are given to the individual raising the most money and the group with the largest percentage participating. Proceeds from the Walk-a-Thon goes to John T. Gray Memorial School, KD's local philanthropy.

1980 ZTA Follies: A Healing Affair

The Zeta Tau Alpha Follies for 1980 was won by Chi Omega's trip back to the 1950s. Sigma Phi Epsilon's guitar trio took second place and Lambda Chi Alpha's Brother Love healed the audience for third place. Proceeds went to the National Association for Retarded Citizens.

LXA Pledge Contest

An annual event sponsored by Lambda Chi Alpha is its Pledge Contest. Sorority pledges are sponsored by both fraternities and sororities.

Photography Staff

Rod Rodriguez, Head Photographer
"Sometimes you have to use a little friendly persuasion to get these pictures in."

Lisa Smith, Photographer
"Rod, you persuaded me!"

Edwin Jaffe, Photographer
"Rod will have to find me if he wants to persuade me!"

Gale Harris, Photographer

"If you persuade me Rod, I'll tell my Daddy on you!"

John Sykes, Photographer

"I didn't know persuasion meant a firing squad!"

Tom Manning, Yearbook Advisor

"Has Rod left yet?"

Alice Hedger, Yearbook Coordinator

"I knew all along they would get it done — with a little bit of prodding."

Donna Gist, Student Life Editor

"I might not be able to write copy, but I am great at laying out."

Cathy Smiley, Class Editor

"I don't care what you call it, on the class section we call it blotting paper."

Cornelius Mabin, Asst. Student Life Editor

"I was the token minority on the 1980 Indian. I was the only male on the editorial staff."

Vivian Phillips, Sports Editor

"What do you mean we lost that game! The section has already gone in and I said we won!"

Editorial Staff

Brenda Jones, Greek Editor

"Now you tell me there are two e's in Greek!"

Karen Manning, Asst. Editor/Organizations

"Hey, Rod, get your camera, here comes another organization!"

Another deadline is finally over, but this time this is it. It's all over and I know a lot of people who are sighing in relief. Me for one. We tried to do some different things with the book and I think we were fairly successful. However, that's easy to say when you're the boss.

I had some really fantastic people working on the book this year. The staff wasn't the most experienced in the world, but they more than made up for it by learning fast and working hard. I think they did a great job.

Poor Cornelius. He had to put up with all of us girls and I'm afraid we ran him off. He only stayed in school the first semester. But the time he was here he was the best. We sorely missed his talent the second half.

Donna always kept us smiling with her "unique" ideas. Now, if we could only get her to write copy! Vivian really outdid herself on the sports section. I love it! Karen dug up organizations that I never knew existed. We had a record number of groups. Brenda put together the Greek section and did a good job. She really got to know the Greek groups with all the calls for composites. Cathy is still sane (despite her pictures after doing the class sections. She always had a helping hand for the rest of us too.

The photographers this year were the best since I've been on the staff here. Rod really got them organized (with or without his whip). Lisa, John, Gail and Edwin had us all pictures before the deadlines and always cooperated. We all appreciated their long hours in the darkroom.

Tom and Alice will never know how much I thank them for understanding and helping. They are professionals all the way. They never panicked, not even when I was still 17 pages short.

I also want to thank Jerry Schaeffer, Gina Bowman and the rest of the Sports Information gang. Not only did they donate pictures and stats, they put up with another yearbook editor working in their office for the third straight year. Their patience and encouragement kept me going.

Also the Jonesboro Sun again helped us out. They supplied us with pictures when ours failed to, uh, develop.

A special nod would have to go to my roomies and neighbors on the circle. They had to listen to the typewriter and a raving editor late at night when a deadline was close.

And finally, I want to dedicate this page to a friend who has begged to have the book dedicated to himself all year. Since I can't do that, I'll give him this page though.

Everybody told me that being editor would be a lot of headaches. They were right. But it was also very rewarding. And besides, headaches go away.

Last year's Indian failed to give a photo credit to David Bryant of Jonesboro for the photograph of Sgt. Major Oller which appeared on page 276. We are indebted to Mr. Bryant. This year we owe thanks to D. K. Schneider and the Jonesboro Sun for photographs.
